Dear David

Thank you for your letter of 17 October, setting out the background to the enquiry which the Commission for Racial Equality made about the Protestant Truth Society's advertisement for a printing manager.

I understand that your enquiry in this case was in discharge of your statutory duties. But such enquiries as this could certainly be made to seem frivolous, and I am sure that you do what you can to minimise the amount of time spent on such cases.

Who ever thought that advertising for a Christian would become an offence under British Law.

Yours
sincerely

Raymond
