ALFRED SHERMAN

- 1. Alfred came to see me last evening.
- 2. This followed a talk which I had had with him on 28th February.
- 3. Herewith:-
 - (a) Notes dated 1st March 1983, prepared by Alfred.
 - (b) Letter of the same date from Hugh to Alfred.
- 4. I have arranged to see Hugh at my room at the House at 3.00 p.m. on Monday, 7th March, in order to see how we can resolve this problem.
- 5. Would you like to be there?
- 6. In any event, it would be helpful if you could let me have a copy of the Memorandum and Articles of Association of the Centre for Policy Studies Limited, together with a copy of any Service Agreement or exchange of letters which there may have been governing Alfred's conditions of employment.
- 7. If you do not have these documents, Tessa will obtain copies for both of us from Nathalie.

Alfred Sherman Esq Director of Studies

March 1st, 1983

My dear Alfred,

There is obviously a good deal of sensitivity about in the Party at the moment because of leakages. Last week's article in the Times by Stodart was an indication of this. As you know very well, the Darlington by-election is just round the corner. May I ask you, therefore, as firmly as I possibly can:

- (1) not to appear on television or radio, nor to write lively articles, for the time being, on any aspect of the Party's policy, unless you discuss this with me beforehand;
- (2) to restrain your natural ebullience and avoid discussion about all the various matters discussed by the manifesto etc. I know you do not believe that there should be a manifesto. That is a point of view. But it seems that there is going to be one, just as in the same way one would prefer the Soviet Union not to exist.

Yours ever Augh

1 thought yester went very well.

Centre for Policy Studies Ltd is a company limited by guarantee, registered in England and Wales, No 1174651, registered office at address above.

To secure fuller understanding of the methods available to improve the standard of living, the quality of life and the freedom of choice of the British people, with particular attention to social market policies.

Hugh's panic-letter enclosed.

Self-typed in haste. loosely structured, slightly repetitive. sorry.

Notes for IG.

a) this has been going on for some time. It has not only been detrimental to the centre's full efficiency, but has been the causes of several failures of my helath and is not goog for my family life.

The troubles, of which I gave you a glimpse, reflect the interpay between circumstances and and personaltiy.

1) The lines of authority in them CPS have keem never been clearly drawn. I assume that effective Authority lies with the PM, but I have no way of knowing. This means that I have no way of knowing why various initatiatives of mone or turned down, or of whether our financial constraints which gadly effect work are the cause of positive decisions, apathy or failure to raise and allocate funds.

The Chairman exercises an autocratic position. But unlike the paradigmatic executive chairman who actually sets the tone and commands the ship, he is very muck of an absentee chairman, often unavailable for consultation, never initiating a ideas and work, at best permitting them, or not, as the case may be, without ever showing the basis of his decisions. It seems to me that either one needs an executive chairman, or an executive with wide authority over work, administration, finance, etc. I lack that authority.

Too often, the decisions are taken behind my back, when khyxa they are taken at all. The small they epitomin the large.

As I have said, if the Chairman refuges to provide a credit card on the grounds that I should spend too much money, his confidence in me is limited. The decision that my nomination for research assistant should be turned down simply on the alleged grounds that he is a communist (though I had cleared him with Per Shipley, and his work with Ed Luttwak) w/ thout consulting me but just handing down a replay while I was away in Berln, after it had been agreed with Simon that Eleizabeth should have the final say (which she did, in favour of my choice) exemplifies what has hapenned time and time again.

I had long since realised that the only solution would be form one of us to leave, since he will not change his attitude and character, and I cannot change mine, even were mine at fault. Since he appears to be set to stay indefinitely, while the work of the centre is beginning to run down for lack of new growth. it is better that I left wax while I can still take on other daunting tasks and earn my keep, and while my health is not too badly eroded by frustrations.

2) In theory, the matter might be settled by giving us a written orders book outlining areas of authority. But this would mean m drastically reducing the chairman's, since at present he simply rules the roost. It would need to create my post as chief executive and give me authority over all other staff, and a real say in budgeting.

It cannot see this being done in the present muddle-through climate.

- matters worse. At least, I can envisage no good coming from .

 it but some harm. His post likely reaction would be to clong closer to Natalie and look around form someone to bring in to play off against me, or to turn closer to friends in CCO to find ways of swallowing us up, which he did not oppose previously.
- framework of action. But without assurance that there is a framework of action, my best bet would be to leave quietly, without expressions of rancour, and use my energies where they can earn the responses, reocgognition and rewgard they deserve.

 I have not yet identified such an alternative. I hope that there is one. If the strain becomes tooo intolerable, I may have to leave first, look later. I should like to avoid this if possible.

 If you wish to know more about the working of the centre, you are welcome to speak to Elizabeth and Nigel Morgan in full confidence.

 I shall, a if you wish, insist that they speak to you frankly, not sparing my own actions if xikkeyx insofar as they see things differently from me. Which would not be unlikely.
- You may also speak with John Hoskyns, pr Savid Wolfson, a let hat he in a large let me know if you intend to be involved further.

But no organsiational chart will show on ee of the main sources of difficulty that Hugh is an old woman prone to panic, and a bit of a Peacock.

the position of Chief Executive and Deputy chairman within existing arrangements, has so that in the even of the chairman harman being elevated to some official job, or changed for any other reason, I should be able to avoid a repetition of has 1979-198-, but the press for a new structure which we enable me not to realise my potentialities, wiehter as CE/Deputy chairman with a supportive chairman, or as Executive vice chairman. In the early years, Hugh encouraged this view. Now he has turned his face sharply against it. I do not wish to have to surmise. Reff Bettter for me to act sooner.

I shall not forget when, in the early years, Keith/made how me subordinate to a young nonentity, Martin Wassall, protege of Nigel Vinson, whose only contribution was to we harrass me. Every time I complaiend, KJ threatenned to the close down the CPS and leave Margaret without any outside help. I should like to be in a position to stop history repeating itself. I do not insist on any given way. But without help, a quite withdrawal on my part would be the lesser evil. and the most dignified.

You will see from this letter that the difficulties that matters have one to a bod. They did not begin with Hugh, or, to be more generous, were not originated by him. He inherited them and tried to ameliorate. O e of the excuses put forward by Keith Joseph for keeping any authority and recources out of my hand was that I could not administer. When challenged, he saw no reason to adduce any evidence of this, just said that this was his "prior impression". Nor did he answer two other objections : a) that the proteges xx patently could not administer, or put in mx ideas either. b) that in any organsiation, the number one man should set the tone and command the administrators, not be the administrators, otherwise, content-work is subordinated to aministration, i.e. bureucratic regidity sets in leading to bureaucratic degeneration. 2/3/83 But in any case, the need for action has been precipitated by the enclosed letter from Hugh. He attempts to re-case entirely our reationship and hisxxxxxx my role.

It was aims agreed, and in writing, that I was free to write as a professional journalist and man of ideas writing in my own name. This is important not only to my credibility beyond the narrow range of party organisation people, but also to my intellectual good heart. People will accept the centre while my integrity, concern for truth and innovationess maintain my credibility.

"ithout that we should not only dgenerate into one more coven of party hacks, but we should be seen to do so and lose our acceptance in part of them media, and applicance acceptance on the part of Hugh and his friend Beloff in this direction. What they do with the smelves in their business, but I must look after my own integrity and intellectual freedom.

What is to be done.

AX

At all events, Hugh has precipitated the crisis which I had hoped and tried for years to put off in the hope solutions emerged. I see a kee the need for a choice between distinct possibilities.

A. SKERMAN GOES QUIETLY

Advantages.

It is within my own power to do so.

I can do so without causing rancour, without offending anyone ealse, without the need to give reasons, for, after all,
people do leave jobs after a time.

No one's nose will be put out of joint.

It could be arged that since the Party has become a source of ideas (viz. David Howell) it does not need its auxiliary.

Disadvantages.

there there are many people competent to take my place, I doubt if any in would do so water the conditions
I have to wokr. I thout someone to give leadership, it would go through the motions, but run down within a year.

B. THOMAS GOES QUIETELY.

I had been hoping that he would go on to higher things, and that I could then unite executive authority in my hands. To that end I pressed since 1979 for reorganisation to make me chief exectutive, with oversight over all work and finance, ready for the change, whether I remained CE with a chairman who simply acted as general liaison with the powers that be and guarantee ofprobility and commonsense, or as that Executive Chairman (or Exeuctive Vice-Chairman.) Hugh at first agreed and promised to arrange htis Theritaestatherialisming contact in the course of time, then reversed his stand a few weeks ago and said no.

What lies behind this stand, and a recent renewed spate of phinpricks and frustrations I do not know, nor do I wish to speculate.

But together with the today's letter, they precipitate the decision.

C THIRD WAY

If there is a third way out, I cannot see it. In any organisation, someone has to set the tone and make the decisions, and others to work along side. this is not
