OBSERVER INTERVIEW - CÉSAR MILSTEIN

Kenneth Harris came on to me this morning to say that the Observer had had a correspondence about your reference (Annex I) to Milstein's work on cloning and his award of a Nobel Prize.

This weekend the Observer will use one of the letters (Annex II) to make a correction about the nature of Milstein's work (which the Observer got wrong) and the fact (so it seems from Milstein's Who's Who? reference, Annex III) that he has not (yet) been awarded a Nobel Prize. Please see the marked passage (at Annex IV) of our transcript of your remarks on the subject.

I have told Kenneth Harris not to get too worked up.
