THE PRIME MINISTER

11th June 1983

Dear Francis,

Following our talk last evening, I am writing to thank you most warmly for all that you have done as a senior member of the Cabinet during the past four years; first as Secretary of State for Defence, then as Leader of the House of Commons, and finally as Foreign Secretary during the past difficult fourteen months.

To each of these responsibilities you have brought your own special qualities of application and diligence and have held three of the most important appointments in Government. You made a very significant contribution to the success of the last Administration.

I hope that these same qualities may be available to the country in some other sphere of service in the future.

I send my best wishes to you and to Valerie.

Yours ever

Raymond
