The Governor rang Lankester yesterday afternoon and gave him an account of the markets' reaction to the 2.30 pm announcement. When asked where the question of a meeting with the Prime Minister now stood, Lankester said that the Prime Minister would indeed like to see the Governor, but that it would be difficult to find a date before the Governor went on leave. The initiative for an immediate meeting was therefore left with the Prime Minister's Office. Lankester concluded by saying that the Prime Minister wished to see the Governor more regularly.
