HOUSING POLICY

(A paper by timothy Raisin)
A. The Strategy.

We propose that our broad housing strategy should be aa follows:-

1. To maximise choice and the provision of housing appropriate to people's needs; desires and resources, With particular emphasis on the opportunity of owner-occupation.
2. To effect a significant reduction in public expenditure on housing - notably by the more effective rive of existing stock in both public and private sectorgicend by the encouragemont of private $\begin{gathered}\text { actor provision, in rented as well as owner- }\end{gathered}$ occupied housing.
3. To effect significant policy changes in such way as to tres the positive attractions of our approach and to minimiss the opportunities for opposition to them - in particular to try to achieve the necessary public expenditure reductions with a minimum of legislation, and in the meanwhile to carry out a sustained campaign of explanation for the basis of our policies.
4. To continue to operate public sector housing through local government rather than a national housing system (though keeping this open as a possible option for later consideration), but to ensure that by a mixture of direct and indirect restraints, local authority spending on houidig fa kept ruder control.
5. Po recognize that there are considerable local variantions in houalag provision, and to allow for these in our legislation and policy.
B. Specific Proposal 日.
6. Owner Occupation: (See Appendix A)
(a) Recognise that paramount need is a steady flow of money through the building societies and a steady. supply of land, and a stable construction industry (useâ as little an possible as an economic regulator).
(b) The exact extentiof additional support that should be given to infist-time crnermoccuprext mat depend on Given to purchasers at loiter ferris. andirnanclal support for shared purchase schatiea - which would anyway be encouraged.
(c) Council and new town tenants should have the right to buy the freehold of thein houser after three years as tenants. (Probably leasehola in the case of flats). Some properties - notably for handicapped and old, or poestibly whers looal. authorities have small pools of oouncil houses to be exempted, Normal conditiona: $30 \%$ aiscount on market value, plus $1 \%$ per year up to a $50 \%$ maximum after 20 years; iocal authority right to pre-emption for five years; ale prices not to be below coat of house. Simpli 'ied conveyancing analagous to leagehold reform procedures.
ii. Private Rented Sector (See Appenaix B)
(a) Halt the decline in the private rented aector with the initial aim of making betiter use of existing stock and reducing the need for more public builiding. The langer-torm poasibility of attracting new investoment must depend on the success of the ahort-term policy and on the creation of a climate in which private renting is once more seen as sengible and acceptable.
(b) Acoept that recurity of tenure cannot ceneralily be abollshed and accept the end of the distinction between furnished and unfurnished tenances but make changes to system as follows:
> introduce regional de-control under existing powers of Section 100 of 2968 Rent Act;
> introduce shorthold syatem for fixed term lettinge which do not confer security;

exempt students from eecurity at end of their course;
exempt flats over shops from security;
improve the right of re-possession for owrers.
(a) Review court proceduree in the field of landlordtenant relations with the possibility of amalgamating the overlapping junisdictione of County Court, Magistrates, Rent Tribunala and Rent Officers.
(d) Posaibillty of better improvement grants for landiorda provided they keep property in rented sector.
(e) Re-introduce de-control of old control properties and their movement to falr mante.
(8) Speed up payment of rent Ipcreabea under Fair Rent syatemi Teview triennial poriod of review; make consideration of fair returin for landjord mandatory,
(g) Conaider with Mreasury colleagues posifinity of diacontinuing capital gaina tax on resident landlords who sell their property; possible partial exemption from Schedule D tax on rental income; and poosibility of extending tax depreciation to residential property.
(h) Consider removing the anomaly of "Fair Rent" (non resident landlord) and "reasonable rent" (resident landlord () and substituting Font based on reasonable return on capital value.
(e) Make rents registrable prior to actual letting to avoid tenants reneging on their bargain.
(f)

 protean tenants of analog vicky.
7. Public Sector.
(See Appendix C).
(a) Accept that council building must be firmly limited and a significant reduction in public experture achieved.
(b) Concentrate public sector provision on stress areas, on particular categories such as old and disabled particularly through provision of sheltered and smaller dwellings, which would release larger dwellings for families, and (to a limited extent) on areas of population growth. .
(c) Accept that substantial rent increases ares necessary, both to reduce public spending and to encourage home ownership - exact extent of rent increases to be a matter 9 judgement in specific circumstances.
(d) Rent increases to be achieved by reducing level of Central Government grant throwing greater financial responsibility upon the local authorities rather than reintroduction of Housing Finance Act 1972. Ratepayers to be protected from excessive burdens possibly by legislation to restrict rate fund contributions (or its successor).
(e) Parker Morris and cost control system to be reviewed. Longer-term possibility of single grant to local authorities for public sector housing also to be considered, but loan sanction control is essential at present.
(f) Improve definition and assessment of housing need, including regional situation.
(8) Encourage local authorities to buy off-the-peg housing schemes for housebuilders.
(h) Reverse present inbalence between private and public sectors in New Towns.
(1) Put forward tenants' charter.
(j) Maintain housing association programme so far as economic atroumatances allow it.
(k) Promote sale of council and new town houses as above; and also encourage gale of housing association

C. Finanoial Implications (See Appendix D).

Appendix D discussea areas where cuta might be made: it includes an extract from the Public Expenditure White Faper.

If we take the 1976-7 column of figures in Table 2.7 of the wite Paper we might think ia terms of the following Yery appraximate indication of savings and increases in expenditure (a) immediately and (b) after three yeare.... *esp

In addition to pubilc expenditure figurea, housing policy also has an effect on taxation. Conservatives stress on owner-occupation will reduce public expenaiture but increase tax reiief on mortgages (and possibly on private rented housing).

Te might have to think in terms of changes of the following order:

The most recent figure available for the total of mortgage tax rellef and the option mortgage aubaidy is for 1975-6. Thus the figure given below for 1976-7 asaumes no chang in tax relief and the increase atated in Gma. 6393 for the option mortgage subsidy

D. Lerislation

Our aim would be to avoid as far as possible the kind of legislation which provides a focus for oppostion, as to some extent the Housing Finance Act of 1972 did.

We should need:
(a) Legislation in the private rented sector.
(b) Legialaition to eatablish the right to buy council and new town houses.
(c) Possibly legislation 11miting rate fund contribution to housing revenue accomis, though this wournmoveto be considered in conjunction with our policy on local government finance.

Both (a) and (b) should be preased aserapidiy as posaible, and ahould be ready within a few months of our taking office. It would be a matier of judgement whether they were taken in one B111.

E. Fresentation

Once these plicies have been agreed we can get on with the flat-0'nt presentation of them ag an inter-related package. So far we have concentrated on the sale of council houses in particular. and home ounership in general, and we also have made a start on the private rented sector both in Parliament and at our June 25 th conference at Central office.

I recommend that early this Autumn we make a real drive to put over the total policy, using the Party Oonferences, a Tarty Political Broadcast and a press conference all within a few Gays of each other to achieve maxdmum impact. The only thing we should not do - both for political reasons and because the figures must depend on the particular circumstances when we assume office - is spell out the extent of our likely reductions in council building and aubsidies. On the other hand we must firmly prepare the ground for these and other changes of policy.

Te must also continue to give atrong support to Conservative local authorities over their housing policies.

Attached to this paper are the reports of the three housing policy groups (Appendices A-C), an interim paper on land policy (Appendix D) and a paper on the control of housing expenditure together with the present figures on housing expenditure and a detailed breakdown of them.

THE CONPROL OF HOUSING EXPERDITURE

SUBSIDIES

$\therefore$ The present aibeidy destemlis contained 1n, the Housing, Renta and Subsidiee Act (1975).

A. Basic Element of Subsidy

Paragraph I of Schedule $I$ otipulated that a local authority ghall be entitied to the basic element of subsidy which ia an amalgam of the sibsidies to vhich local authorities were entitied under the Housing Finance Act (1972). However Paragraph 8 etipulatas, that it may be reduced or discontinued if they have demoliehed or disposed of hoypes inor in any other oircumetances whith he consideri relevant". The Secretary of State has power to decide on the method of cqlculation of any such reduction. This proviaion also applies to the Capital Costs Element (see below).

B. Fapital Costa Element

66 per cent is paid for loan charges on "reckonable expendituren on new brilding, improvemente and acquiaitions. The Secretary of State may, alter the percentage by order under paraEraph 2 Sub-Paragraph 5. This alao entitles hin to deoide what 1a reckoriele expenáture,

O. Supplementary Firanoing Flement

33 per oent of the excess loan chargea in axeas where intereat charges are particularly high is paid. This percentage can be rai 日ed by order under Paragraph 3 of Sub Paragraph 2. This also giveg the Secretary of State the power to determine What are Reck konable Iogn chargea.
D. Spectai Element

The Renureration Chapges and Granta at (1975) provided for the continuation of this subsiay for 1976-7 only An amendment to Paragraph 6 would be nocessary to make it payable for any subsequent year. It was originally designed to ease the transition from the Rent Freeze of 1974-5.

E. High Costa Sloment

Taragraph 7 Sib-Rápagaph 2 states that the secretary of State shall determine the basis of calculation for the High Costs Blement. This subsidy ie deaigned to help local authorities with opecially high costs.

F. Expanding Toma Subaidy and Transitional. Towns Development Subsidar

Both these subsidies are peyable at the secretary of State ${ }^{\text {B }}$ disoretion. The amouit of Expanding Touna Subaidy is controlled by Claupe 4 Sub-Section 4. Clause 5 Sub-Section 4 lays down that the Seoretary' of State may reduce or discontinue subsidy if fidmelling is demolished or diaposed of on in any other alrounatances thioh he'considers relevant. .
G. Rent Reiogte Subaldy and Rent Allowance Subsidy

75 per cent of the cost of Rent Rebate Subsidy is payable by oubsidy and under the Housing Finance act (1972) 100 per cent of Rent Allowance subsidy. The latter will reduce to 80 per cent $n^{1} x t$ year unleas an order is laid as one was this year.

POLICY IMPLICATIONS

Subsidy cuts of $£ 10$ milition will mean a rent increase of 4 p per week (rebated). Cute of $¢ 500$ million over 5 years would mean rent incraases of about El per a week (or over 20 per cent initially) for 5 yearg (including 'Normal' rent increases to oope with inflation). £100 million of this asavig might be lost in increases in rent rebates.

OPMION MORTGAGE SUBSIDY

The level of Option Mortgage subaidy in general rises With the benefits accrizing from tax relief on mortgage interes Lower mortgage rates and lower taxes would reduce the cost of the acheme.. 物 would not expect to cut this subsidy; indeed it would be liable to increase.

HOUSTNG ASSOCLATIONS

Housing Aasociation Expenditure is made up of loana and grants to housing associations for new and improved housing. The Housing Corporation or a local authority lend money to housing asaociations. The Government than pays Housing Asaoclation Grant as an immediate lump sum to meet the difference between the Falr Rent fixed by the Rent Officer and the actual coat of the scheme. Each individual loan by the local autiorfty is controlled under Section 119 of the Housing Act (1957). Eacin Regional Offise of the Department of the Environment is allowed to approve a certain sum of lending by local authorities and gives consent individually to particular shemes. Section 7 of the Housing Act (1974) sets an overall celiling on the level of lending by the Housing Corporation. This can only be amended by in Affirmative Resolution Order. If we intend to restrict council housing to areas of greatest stress, it may be reabonable to do this for housing associations too. (although this policy is already being pursued to some extent).

IMPRONEMENT GRANTS

There are various types of granta to which qualifying conditions are attached. Rateable Value Limita of el75 outaide Iondon and $\approx 300$ inside, Iondon were introduced in December 1974 under the Housing Aot 1 74. These 11 mita were raised to $\& 350$ and $\mathbf{\epsilon 6 0 0}$ respectively for conversions. Local authorities have aiscretion under the Housing Act (1974) to authorl za renovation grants for ordinary Improvement Grants or conversions, (Sect1on 61), Repair frante (Section 71) and Special Grants for instaliing extra standard amentifes in houses with multiple occupation (Section 69). Intermediate Granta for the installation of standard amenities are autoratic provided that the conditions are met. Improvement Granta are not available for second homes and landlords must guarantee to keep their accommodition in the rented aector for 5 years or repay the grent. There might well be a case for more generous grants for landiords if manicipalization was cut back at the same time.

LOCAL AUTFEORITY IMPROVEMBETS

Iocal Authority Improvement Expenditure is controlled by Section 105 of the Housing Act (1974). Each local authority makes an initial bid and ailocations are subsequently announced. Mr. Freeson, the Minitter for Housing and Construction, has get up a study group on Soolal Ownership and the Renovation of Council Dsellings, which oonveniently advised expenditure just under the figure Mr. Crosland Inally anmounced.

GROSS INYESPMIRNT

Borrowing for New Building, Land Purchase or Municipalization is governed by Paragraph $l$ of Scheduls 13 to the Local Governiment Act (1972). The Secretary of State gives loan sanction permiasion individually far new construction and has Glven general consent in Circular 86/74 for land purchase for housing and in Circular 33/76 for municipalization of certain categories of dwelling. These circulars can of course be changed at any time.

IOCAL AUYHORITY IOANS

Iocel authority lending for house purchase has been controlled since 1975-6. In that year, roughly speaking, local councils were allocated one helf of the sum lent out for 1974-5. A further $£ 52$ million cut was announced for English authoritica in January 1976 by Mr , Crosland, then Secretary of State for the Bnvionment. Under the Local Government Act (1972) local councile have to obtain loan aanction for any borrovings made in order to lend for house purchase. Previously general consent was given but this is no longer the case as described above. Attached is an extract from the public expenditure survey covaring housing und a breakdown of those figures given in answer to written questions.
